

Bram Stoker

Vamping with Vamps Celebrating the Birthday of Bram Stoker (b. November 8, 1847) & Stephenie Meyer (b. December 24, 1973)

Stephenie Meyer

Description of Program

Bram Stoker introduced us to the world of the undead in his stunning novel Dracula. One hundred and eight years later, author Stephenie Meyers wrote the first of what has become a mesmerizing series about vampires. Join us as we vamp with vamps!

Program Plans

Ice Breaker:

"Who Am I?" Write down the names of characters from either author's books on separate sheets of paper and tape to the back each person in attendance. The participants must then walk around the room and find out who they are by asking for hints from other players.

Games:

Win Lose or Draw - Participants form teams and must draw characters or items from the authors' books. The team with the most correct answers wins.

Hangman - Individuals must guess the missing letters in words that are related to vampires.

Crafts

Walking Billboards- Each teen brings a t-shirt to decorate with their favorite paranormal; characters, novels, authors.

Food

Red apples
Sour Vampire Bat Candy (made by Jelly Belly Company)
Fruit Punch
Garlic/Pizza bread with marinara sauce

Other:

Create a list of similar paranormal YA titles and distribute at celebration. More information or questions?

More information or questions?

Contact Portia Latalladi, Garfield Ridge Branch, Chicago Public Library, platalla@chipublib.org